Risk Management

What is Risk Management?

ISO 31000 States: "Risks affecting organizations can have consequences in terms of economic performance and professional reputation, as well as environmental, safety and societal outcomes. Therefore, managing risk effectively helps organizations to perform well in an environment full of uncertainty."

Every strategy, decision, and action, taken in your company comes with risk attached.

Risks can be good as well as bad we need to take best advantage of good risks and minimise disruption caused by bad risk.

You need to understand your risk appetite to decide what is acceptable, and what is not!

Risk management is enabling, it promotes good decision making.

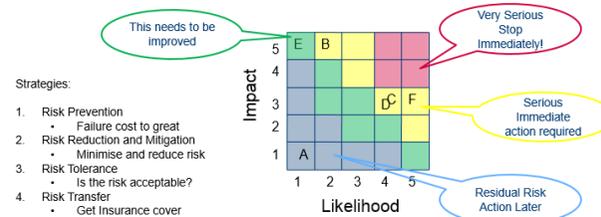

Projects that are analysed for risk, and suitably tempered usually at minimal cost, will have a greater likelihood of success.

What's involved?

A workshop with the management, or operations team, starting with an outline history of reasons for Risk Management requirement in modern businesses.

Use of some basic Risk Identification techniques to find out where the organisation might be at risk, and some mitigation possibilities.

What do I get out of it?

An understanding of Risk Management processes and how they will reduce costs and improve productivity

A strategy to move forward with Risk Management and introduce the concept to company culture

Identification of some Risks that need to be reduced immediately and actions needed to achieve this.

Why Virrata?

The Virrata approach differs from others by creating key links between business needs and opportunities then designing solutions to meet those needs.

We have wide experience in helping international businesses to understand, and implement, risk management methods.

We identify quick wins and big gains to maximise returns on investment.

Once the roadmap is agreed you will chose implementation route best suited to the business's capacity and capability. This ranges from local management taking full responsibility for implementation to Virrata advising, training and fully supporting positive change including ongoing annual reviews and internal benchmarking.
